

Neds Housing Co-op

ABOUT

Neds Housing Cooperative was formed in 2000 and is part of Radical Routes, a network of like-minded co-operatives that facilitates mutual-aid to create collective power.

As a co-operative, Neds members have control of their own accommodation and use their combined resource to invest in the maintenance and improvement of the 1850's New Basford house.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING

Principles of social and environmental justice underpin the co-operative. Working as a collective enables ethical and organic household purchases to become more economical through scale, all meals are vegan, with active and sustainable travel methods preferred.

Energy use is monitored and discussed at house meetings, with efficiency measures such as insulation and solar panels already installed through shared investment, with sustainable space and water heating measures planned.

The group are keen to share experiences with others wishing to set up co-operative housing projects.
